Dr. Mayo Tells His Story.

Dr. Mayo's statement of the trouble

"Let me say in the beginning that no man has a higher regard for Governor Wells than I have. I believe him to be a man of integrity and of the greatest a man of integrity and of the gleatest ability. He has given the state a splendid administration and I regard him as a high-minded gentleman. There is not and never has been any personal feeling between Governor Wells and myself. I believe if Governor Wells had kept out of this fight he might have kept out of this fight he might have had the senatorship or been elected congressman, because nobody questions fore the primary as a Cutler man. I thought the matter over for a day or two and when they came again I told them I had no objection. On the night of the primary I was called to attend a man named Bassett, who had taken poison, and I was not able to get to the primary until after the nominations had been made. I learned there that I had been nominated and that C. E. Allen had inquired whether I was for Governor Wells and had been told that it was understood I was a Wells man. I was post existed about it myself but at len at once arose to ask how the other I was not asked about it myself, but at

"During the convention I left my seat for a time and gave my proxy to Mr. Langton, the other delegate from my district. I returned while the second ballot for governor was in progress and discovered there was some question about the proxy. Remarking that I would settle it by casting the vote myself. I picked up a Cutler ballot and voted it. When Katz began abusing me in the convention I attributed it to a natural feeling of soreness because of the governor's defeat and paid little heed to it, beyond telling him to keep quiet, or something like that, I would never have thought of the matter again had it not been for the publication of an account of the incident in The Heraid. had it not been for the publication of an account of the incident in The Herald. had not seen the story myself when friends called my attention to it during the forenoon. I kept hearing of it and decided that I should take some action in justification of myself. I looked for Katz during Friday afternoon, but was unable to find him.

Looks For Katz Deliberately.

"This morning I started uptown with the deliberate intention of finding him and reaching some sort of an under-standing with him. More of his talk about me had been coming back to me and I was determined to bring it to an end. So I got into my buggy and drove past the Walker corner five or six times before I saw him. As soon as I saw him I at once jumped out of the buggy and confronted him. I asked him what he meant by talking that way about me and common the mean by talking that way about me and told him it must stop. He replied that he had nothing to take back and asked me what I was going to do about it. At that I struck him and knocked him partially over. As he straightened up I struck him again and had struck him three or four times. had struck him three or four times, courses taught by these wonderful perhaps, when he grappled with me to schools.

These schools were started to recome perhaps, when he grappied with me to escape further punishment. I then went to work on his head and had punched him several times when we both tripped and fell down the steps. I kept on hitting at him as we rolled down stairs 3,200 people. and continued it at the bottom until he yelled that he had enough. Then I let him up, jumped into my buggy and drove home. When I got home I changed my clothes for some that were not bloody and notified the folice station to bloody and notified the folice station that I had just licked a man on the results price of their scholarship. not bloody and notified the police sta-tion that I had just licked a man on Main street and was at home if they

"We unwittingly accepted the man, foolishly thinking his word good. He was entered as our candidate for delegate from the Forty-ninth district. Many friends of C. E. sprang from his buggy, approached Mr. Katz and engaged in a brief dialogue with him before Dr. Mayo struck the first blow of the fight.

Dr. Mayo is a somewhat larger man than Mr. Katz and showed fewer traces of the struggle. Neither was materially damaged. The doctor complained that he had hurt his hands through striking Mr. Katz. but his face bore no bruises. Mr. Katz's face had a few red spots, due more to bumping on the steps than to the doctor's blows, Mr. Katz avers.

Broken Faith Charged.

The trouble began with the Republican convention. Mr. Katz is a brotherin-law of Governor Wells and was a manager of the governor's campaign. The Wells men claim Dr. Mayo promised to support the governor in the convention and failed to keep the pledge. Mr. Katz made a verbal attack on the doctor during the convention, but the doctor did not take the matter up at that time. The trouble in the convention was witnessed by a reporter of The Herald, and an account of it appeared in The Herald next day. The publicity thus given the story, Dr. Mayo says, convinced him that he must take the matter up and led to his hunt

Reese Tells of Pledge.

The name of A. C. Reese was men-

The name of A. C. Reese was mentioned yesterday as one who had talked to Dr. Mayo in regard to his position with reference to Governor Wells' candidacy.

"I have no desire to get into this affair," said Mr. Reese, "because all the parties concerned are friends of mine, but some doubt having arisen as to whether Dr. H. N. Mayo made any pledge to support the candidacy of Governor Heber M. Wells at the recent state convention, I have to say that Dr. Mayo did make such a pledge to me on the evening of the Republican primaries on the 19th inst. By request I impersonated Mr. Katz and called Dr. Mayo by telephone at his home to get an expression from him. called Dr. Mayo by telephone at his compressman, because nobody questions his qualifications for any office he might aspire to. But two terms, in my judgment, are enough for one man. I have no apologies to make for opposing Governor Wells for renomination and my opposition to him did not imply that my regard for him had diminished. It was merely a question of my personal choice and to that every man is entitled.

"A short time before the primaries were held some of my political friends among the supporters of Mr. Cutler asked me if I would consent to go before the primary as a Cutler man. I have by telephone at his come to get an expression from him, inasmuch as it had been stated that he was not supporting the governor. Governor Wells, that the governor and others understood his position and that the voters at the primary elected him a delegate on the understanding that he would vote for Governor Wells. My questions to Dr. Mayo were heard by Mr. Offenbach, Mr. Meteer, Mr. Snyder and others at the governor's headquarters, and the doctor's replies I repeated aloud in the hearing of these gentlemen."

How Mayo Was Elected

The story of the primary at which Dr. Mayo was elected was told yesterday by one who attended, as follows:
"Dr. Mayo was not present when was not asked about it myself, but at o time did I pledge my support to the overnor.

"During the convention I left my seat"

"The search of the search of t minutes, or something like that, Dr. Mayo came in. He inquired what had been done and was told what had be said just about as I have told it. I only comment, so far as I heard, was: 'He doesn't know. He doesn't know,' and soon after he left the primary."

cient Time For Delivery."

"It is just this way," said Mr. Thomas. "Carriers work only eight hours a day. They are not allowed to work a minute over eight hours unless there is some special reason why they should. The law governing the service of carriers provides for an eight-hour day, and there is to be no overume unless it is unavoidable. The reason for this is that in the past some carriers kept a record of the minutes they worked each day, and when their service exceeded eight hours a day for a time they went into court to collect for overtime.

"Each postmaster in a city where there is delivery by carrier must make up a monthly report showing the work of every carrier connected with his office. The monthly reports must show actual time worked by each carrier, and if there has been any overtime the reason must be stated. A carrier, when he finds that he has more mail than he can deliver before the expiration of his eight hours oh a given day, is required to quit within the eight-hour limit and to bring the mail back to the office and stamp it 'insufficient time for delivery.' It remains in the office until the following morning, when it is taken out again on the first delivery.

Attempt to Remedy Fails.

"Some time ago the postoffice depart ment tried to remedy this condition which is not a desirable one, by pro ment tried to remedy this condition, which is not a desirable one, by providing that carriers should work forty-eight hours a week, and that the time not worked on some days when the malts all run regularly should be added to that of other days when they were coming in late. But it was soon found that many of the carriers would have worked forty-five or forty-six hours by Friday evening and would have only two or three hours to work on Saturday. This scheme, having been found impracticable, was then abandoned. "Carriers work in shifts between 6 o'clock in the morning and 6 o'clock in the evening, but their time, as I have stated, cannot exceed eight hours each day. We have organized a special service for the hotels of the city, so that they and their guests can get their mail about 8:30 o'clock each evening, but the mall for the rest of the city must wait

THE WINE ROOM QUESTION.

At the meeting of the city council to tion a new liquor license requiring saloons and restaurants that sell drinks to pay a $1,200 license. If a restaurant sends out to a nearby saloon to procure a drink for a customer, it will not be required to have a license. At present there are but four restaurants in the city paying a $400 license tax.

Drug Stores to Pay $400.

When the committee met Aug. 17, Councilmen Hartenstein and Hobday proposed that wine rooms be abolished in restaurants where liquor is sold, and in saloons. The motion was carried, but it is probable the clause will not be inserted in the ordinance, as it has been discovered that part of chapter xxiv, section 323 of the municipal laws covers this point. The councilmen covers this point. The councilment were not aware, when the wine room question was first brought up, that this provision was among the city ordinances. The section reads as follows:

Against Wine Rooms. "It shall be unlawful for any person keeping any saloon to have or keep in connection with or as a part of his place of business any wine room, gar-den or other place; roofed or open, either with or without doors, curtains or screens of any kind, into which any female person, shall be allowed to enfemale person shall be allowed to en-ter from the outside, or from such sa-loon, and there be supplied with any sort of liquor whatsoever."

The manager of the Ken yon hotel. Samuel Porter, in a com plaint sworn to yesterday before Judge C. B. Diehl, charged that on July 13, Drug stores will be charged the old $400 license and the police will be instructed to strictly enforce the law which prohibits the sale of liquor in such places to be drunk on the premium and ample funds in the bank to meet the payment upon the draft. The further charge was made by Porter that the draft was sent to the Lewiston bank for collection, and was returned marked "No funds." The draft, Mr. Porter says, was given in payment of two hotel bills run by Pence and monadvanced to him when he was broke,

Not Influenced by Portland Action. "Were you influenced in making the charge against Pence by his attitude in the mining congress at Portland?" in the mining congress Mr. Porter was asked.

"What Pence said or did in the min-ing corgress did not influence me in the least in swearing to the complaint against him," said Mr. Porter, "His or position to Salt Lake had nothing to do with the case. I had simply been unable to locate Pence until I learned from the newspapers that he was in Portland attending the minin congress. I then laid the matter be fore the county attorney, and upo his advice swore to the complaint up on which the warrant for Pence's ar rest was issued.

Mr. Williams was beloved by all who knew him; generous and kind, with a encouraging word and smile for all. Mr. Williams was park keeper at Liberty park during Glendinning's administration, and made the substantial improvements which now exist there. He was for many years a member of the Sait Lake theatre orchestra, and very popular among the musical fraternity. Stricken down at the age of 40 through paralysis the heatfelt sympathy goes out to the bereaved widow and children.
